Ride In Review

While I've been to most of the notable peaks in the National Parks, Assiniboine has always beckoned to me from a distance. And so, on learning that this year's Trail Ride was to Mount Assiniboine, I decided to take a well earned vacation, and fulfill one of my greatest ambitions... to camp within the shadow of the Assiniboine.

As you probably know, Assiniboine is one of the highest peaks in the Canadian Rockies, having an elevation of nearly twelve thousand feet. It is really one in a group of ten, at the Great Divide, and is partly in British Columbia, and partly in Alberta. It is often referred to as the Canadian Matterhorn.

Printed in Canada

This was one of the most spectacular rides in the history of the organization. There were some eighty-four riders — or 'dudes' as we are called — and with the guides and the kitchen help, we numbered around one hundred, with 70 more horses to take care of the duffle, foodstuffs and kitchen equipment, so you can imagine it was quite a sight.

We started out from Canmore, where the horses were tethered in the corral, whinnying, and eager to be off. It seemed quite a colossal undertaking to get that many horses under way, but after 19 years of trail riding, I suppose they have it down to a science.

In no time at all, it seemed, we were off on the trails with the President leading the way. The other riders just seemed to fall naturally into single file, with the official doctor bringing up in the rear.

The trail we took this year was quite a historic one. It was the same trail, only in reverse, that Father de Smet, the Jesuit missionary, took when he came through in 1845, almost one hundred years ago. It is an old Indian trail from the Kootenay River, through the old Assiniboine Pass by way of Spray Lakes and Whiteman's Pass.

Our half-way camp was at Spray Lakes where we spent our first night out. We really looked like an Indian settlement for all the world, and probably smelt like one too, by the time we got our fires going inside the teepees.

These teepees are cosy for camping though; you wouldn't want to sleep out in a pup tent after camping in one. We can still learn a lot from our dark-skinned brothers when it comes to living out of doors. They had the central heating system figured out long before we ever set foot on these shores.

Strictly Informal

The meals were delightfully informal affairs as you might expect, with everyone grabbing a plate, bowl, cup, spoon, knife and fork, and queuing up at the kitchen stove as soon as the 'come-and-get-it' call sounded. The rationing did not seem to make much difference. We didn't have maple syrup on our flap-jacks, to be sure, but a very good substitute. I got the recipe from Ruth Brewster who was helping Claude, her husband, look after our inner welfare. I'm going to try it out one of these days.

We had to be up next morning by nine, breakfasted, and packed ready for the trails, for we had to make the Assiniboine camp before sundown. It was a hard ride, and stiff going, especially for the horses—patient souls.

I'll never forget the lovely sight as we approached the Assiniboine group. The meadows were just a riot of colour with the wild flowers, the blues of the larkspur and the harebell, the lovely shades of Indian paintbrush ranging from the palest pink to the deepest rose colour, and even pure white and lemon yellow. We counted as many as twenty different shades. I was quite surprised to see this, as the Indian paintbrush at the Coast is of a vermilion colour.

This was my first trip into the mountains that I recall seeing the western anemone in bloom. They are usually in seed by the time the snow melts in the passes sufficiently to allow camping. You are probably familiar with its busbie-like tufts of seeds. We call them tow-headed babies at the Coast, and they look just like that. Even in seed they are a lovely sight, the blooms are a blue-white and rather resemble a crocus. Deep blue forget-me-nots were growing as profusely as dandelions on a boulevard. Lake Magog, lying at the foot of the giant peak, reflected this myriad of colour in all its alpine beauty.

Horseless Sunday for Author

The Trail Ride lasts for five days, two days are required for going, two days for getting back, and one day and two nights are spent at the main camp. Sunday is always observed as a layover day; you can do just as you please. Some hike, some fish, and others just recuperate. The experienced riders saddle their horses as usual, and are off to see new wonders. But raw dudes like myself don't want to see a horse again, not until they have to... and I'm sure the same goes for the horses. You know you certainly get attached to a horse on a long trip like that, in more ways than one.

For those who fished, the chances were good. With 10 lakes to choose from within walking or riding distance of the camp, you can imagine that the anglers were very happy. These mountain lakes and streams are all government stocked from the fish hatchery at Banff, where two and a half million fry are raised annually to stock them. There are six or seven different species — rainbow, cut-throat, salmon, brown, speckled trout, and even some imports from Loch Leven.

Arthur Wheeler, founder of the Alpine Club of Canada, was telling me he had quite a job on his hands trying to find appropriate names for all the lakes, with each one lovelier than the last. Naming the topographical features and lakes was part of his work in surveying the boundary line between British Columbia and Alberta while he was Commissioner for B.C.

Indian Guides Fine Fellows

I got along famously with our Indian guides. They are a lot of fine fellows and were very interested in our Coast Indians. We are planning, after the war, to have a big Indian celebration at Banff, with our Coast Indians as guests. Assiniboine is an Indian word, and means 'He who cooks with stones', that is, heating the stones to raise the temperature of the water to boiling. Our Coast Indians used the same method.

One always meets interesting personalities at such camps. We had two famous mountain climbers along with us, Georgia Engelhard, (Georgia, by the way, is a girl) and Eaton Cromwell, both from New York.

They are climbing partners and jointly hold the climbing record for scaling 40 peaks in one season. Georgia was telling me she climbed Mount Assiniboine nine years ago. It took her six hours to climb and five hours for the descent. She was accompanied by a Swiss guide of course.

Sir James Outram was the first to climb the peak in 1901. The two New Yorkers also excelled themselves in the art of colored photography along the trail.

We also had several airmen along with us as our guests. They are in training in Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Two were from Australia, and two from New Zealand and two from Great Britain. We found them most interesting. I guess they had plenty of thrills. I can just imagine them writing back home about the wild and woollie West.

Followed Simpson's Footsteps

Leaving Mount Assiniboine on Monday morning we made a circular tour by way of the Valley of the Rocks, Simpson Summit, and Quartz Hill to Larix Lake where we spent the last night in camp before heading for Banff.

This route, by the way, is another historical trail, used by Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, back in 1841. This was the first lap of his overland journey around the world. We of course, were travelling it in reverse. It is interesting to think that after 100 years these old Indian trails are still in use. From Larix Lake we followed down Healy Creek, past the Sulphur Hot Springs and into Banff, a round trip of 75 miles in all.

A highlight of the evenings in camp was the jolly singsong we held nightly around the campfire and featuring songs about our own Canadian Rockies, set to popular tunes by the founder of the organization, Dr. John Murray Gibbon of Montreal. Dr. Gibbon goes along on these rides every year, seeing to it that everyone is looked after and has a good time.

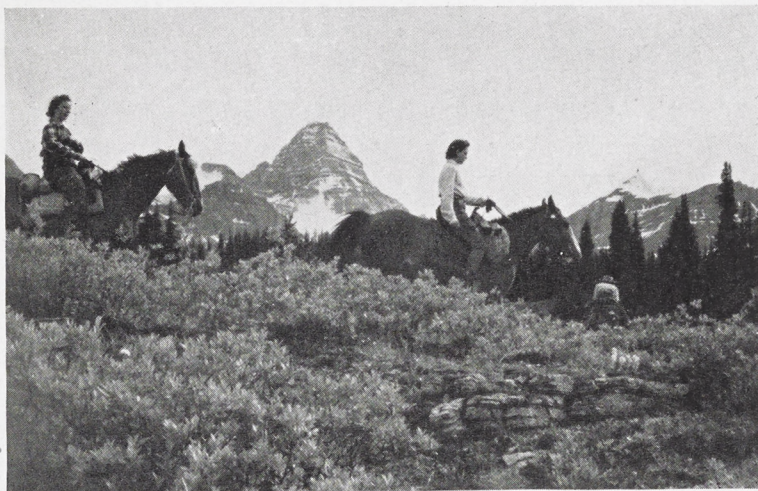

Many of our members are Americans who have been in the habit of vacationing in Europe. They tell us we needn't go abroad for scenery, we have fifty Switzerlands in one, right here in our own Canadian Rockies.

SCENE — Open Air Court of the Canadian Rockies — Banff National Park.

Town Crier: Oyez! Oyez! Oyez! All persons having business before this Court draw near and they shall be heard.

Presiding Judge: The Clerk of the Court will now read the Indictment.

Clerk of the Court: Whereas on the first day of August, 1943, three notorious persons, namely Adolph Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Admiral Tojo, were found in secret conference on the summit of Mount Assiniboine, a place more or less equidistant from Berlin, Germany, and Tokio, Japan — and there conspired and set out to accomplish various methods of sabotage and other nefarious and malevolent devices, plots and machinations calculated to disturb the amicable relations between the true and faithful allies, the United States, Great Britain, and the British Commonwealth of Nations, notably Canada, Australia and New Zealand, all of whom have members participating in the annual Trail Ride of the Canadian Rockies;

And whereas these three prisoners were caught in flagrante delicto stirring up vicious broods of millions of mosquitoes, discouraging the trout from rising to the fly, causing pack trains to be delayed so as to unduly rush the setting up of teepees, creating mudholes on the trails, washing out bridges over creeks, inciting an otherwise friendly horse to kick the head guide, Lawrie Johnstone, and inciting horses to stray such distances that these prisoners are hereby accused of being horse-thieves;

And whereas they are notorious disturbers of the peace and murderers of the King's English (so sorry please) and have interrupted the slumbers and melodious snorings of the Trail Riders with the crash of avalanches from the snow-white slopes of Mount Assiniboine;

And whereas there are 99 other reasons for these prisoners being hung, drawn and quartered after being roasted over a campfire;

Now, therefore, the Grand Jury of the Open Air Court of the Canadian Rockies, Banff National Park, in Conclave Extraordinary, find an indictment that the said prisoners are guilty of and are charged with the above-mentioned felonies and will now be duly tried on the first, fourth, thirty-second and ninety-eighth counts.

Judge: Prisoners, how do you plead — "Guilty" or "Not Guilty?"

'Judge' Diverty

Prisoners: Not Guilty!

Judge: Are you represented by Counsel?

Mussolini: No, Your Honor, we electa to defenda ourselves — Adolph Hitler will parlare on our behalf as usual.

(Laughter in Court)

Judge: (banging his gavel) Order in Court! — (aside to the Clerk of the Court): As this is a jury case, call in the Jury. (Members of Jury take their places) Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury, this is an unusual case, and I am given to understand that you are an unusual Jury — You are described as Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. Now what is a Trail Rider?

Jury responds by singing "You'll Get Used to It" from Trail Ride Song Sheet.

Clerk of the Court: Call in the witnesses — first Georgia Engelhard. (Enter Georgia).

Deputy Sheriff: Raise your right hand (which she does). Your name is Georgia Engelhard of New York City? You are reported to be an alpine climber. Tell the Court what you have done in 10 words or thereabouts.

Georgia: While exploring the summit of Mount Assiniboine, I noticed three suspicious looking characters dropping down on a rocky ridge from parachutes. Concealing myself behind a mountain goat, I cautiously approached them and heard them speaking very bad English.

Judge: Are you sure that it was not Scotch?

Georgia: Definitely not. I then slid down the mountain side and swam across the lake to the Trail Riders' camp.

Juryman Rungius: Your Honor, I declare that is impossible!

Judge: It is forbidden to interrupt witnesses in this Court. Moreover I declare it Contempt of Court to dispute the word of so beautiful a lady. Deputy Sheriff, tell a policeman to remove this Juryman and incarcerate him in prison... the case will now proceed.

Georgia: In this camp I had heard there were a number of aviators and aviatrixes.

Judge: Call them "trixies" for short. Describe this camp.

Georgia: I suggest that the Jury sing the song of Mount Assiniboine. (Jury sings "Under Mount Assiniboine" from Trail Ride Song Sheet).

Prosecuting Attorney: What did you do then?

Georgia: I called the aviators and trixies to form a mixed posse to capture these suspicious characters. Using a new secret piece of equipment, they speedily flew aloft and captured the trio in half a jiffy. Then they brought them back to camp, and so they were handed over to the Mounted Police.

Prosecuting Attorney: I call the aviators and trixies as witnesses.

Clerk of the Court: Will the aviators and trixies please step forward. (These sing "There'll Always be an England" and do a drill, with their secret equipment of short poles and ground sheets, under the direction of Jean Stewart).

Judge: These talented aviators and trixies evidently know their stuff, and here we have the prisoners. We can dispense with further evidence from them. (Turning to the Prosecuting Attorney) Who is your next witness?

Prosecuting Attorney: Call Charlie Beil to give his evidence on the sabotage among the ponies.

DRAMATIS PERSONNAE

Photos by C.P.R., Palenske, and Mary Sieburth

Charlie Beil: "Never seen sech a thing happen 'round here before", says I to my horse, 'Chicken', after he broke down and gave me the lowdown on all this, and I'm tellin' you he was weepin' tears as big as buzzards' eggs right on my shoulder and down my neck, just like you gotta let the wimmin do when the high altitude makes 'em feel sentimental.

Says I to Chicken, "You mean to tell me you ponies got that bad medicine from old Shicklegruber, Mussie, and that old shrimp, Tojo, when they camped there on old Assiniboine — and that's why you tried to buck me off and jump out from under me?"

"Yep, boss", he sniffles, "and that old billie-goat that hangs 'round up there kept a-wearin' that trail down to bed-rock bringin' dope to old Whitie, the horse that kicked Lawrie Johnstone, and Whitie told us that if we done what he told us to, we'd get a new order among us horses, sech as no more cowboys with spurs a-ridin' us, just pretty girls on us — the ones that put lipstick all over our noses when they kissed us every time they got off, and sech stuff as all that."

His own tears choke old Chicken about now, and I shoves another question at him and I says to him: "How come we could never hear no bells in the mornin' when we was lookin' for you ponies?" He waits a minute, and swallows a couple of times, and he mumbles: "I tell you, all of us horses that had bells a-danglin' on our necks kept to the brush, never movin' a head so the bells wouldn't rattle, and some of us carried mouthfuls of grass to 'em, feedin' 'em like kittens, and the rest of us took turnabout swishin' mosquitoes off 'em."

You could have knocked me over with Georgia Engelhard's eagle-feather when I heard that, and I pops this to 'em and I says "Give me the lowdown on how those three monkeys up there got hold of our horse-lingo."

"A cowboy put 'em wise", he says. "Lay off!" I rasps at him, "don't be loadin' me". "I ain't", he comes back at me, "they bribed 'em with hay". I'm gettin' sore and I says "Cowboys don't eat hay". "But boss," he says, "they sprinkled the hay with whiskey". I never answered but I thought to myself they found his weakness; it might have been me.

Well, it was gettin' late, we both got up and when I put my foot in the stirrup to get on, Chicken looks at my spurs and grunts: "Keep those hooks away from me!"

"Just like wimmin," I thinks to myself, "one minute a-cryin' and next minute naggin' about something". And we shoved off for camp.

"They bribed 'em with hay," said Chicken

Judge: How did you overcome this sabotage?

Charlie: We used a charm by singing "My Pony is out in the Open" from the Trail Ride Song Sheet.

Judge: Let us now take the Count of Sabotage by Mosquitoes.

Prosecuting Attorney: What do you say to that, Charlie Beil?

Charlie: I suggest that the members of the Jury sing the Trail Ride song: "There's a Log Fire to Dream by", from the Trail Ride Song Sheet. (This they now sing).

Judge: There is no further evidence needed. I call on the delegate of the prisoners, namely Adolph Hitler to state their case.

Foreman of the Jury: We declare the prisoners "Guilty".

Judge: Prisoners at the Bar, you have heard the verdict of the Jury. I now proceed to pass sentence. For your nefarious crimes against the Amity of Nations and participating against the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, I sentence all three of you in alphabetical order to be hung, drawn and quartered; but before you are taken to condemned cells, I order you to provide the entertainment to this Court assembled:

- (1) by washing dishes under the superintendence of Pat Rawlings.
- (2) by dancing the Carioca.
- (3) by joining with the Stoney Indians present, whose territory they have invaded, in a Prairie Chicken Dance.

Trail Riders Welcome Airmen

An outstanding and happy feature of this year's Trail Ride was the inclusion in our ranks of several Allied airmen, training under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan and representing Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

Six of these lads, were selected by the Air Vice-Marshal of No. 4 Training Command, their furloughs being arranged to coincide with the dates of the Trail Ride.

At the conclusion of the ride the strains of "Waltzing Matilda", theme song of the boys from down under, were familiar to every Trail Rider, while "Fair Dinkum" and other expressions in common use by the Aussies, actually found their way into a few Canadian and American vocabularies!

The reaction of the honored guests in Air Force blue can be summed up in a letter, reproduced on this page, from L.A.C. Nolan of New Zealand.

LAC A. F. Bethall, R.A.F.; LAC G. M. Hawksworth, R.A.F.; LAC M. A. Nolan, R.N.Z.A.F.; LAC S. F. Thomas, R.N.Z.A.F.; LAC R. J. D. Mallinson, R.A.A.F.; LAC A. F. Linder, R.A.A.F.

The Secretary,
Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sir:—

I wish to express to the President, Officers and Members of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, my deepest appreciation of their kindness and thoughtfulness in inviting us six service men as guests on the annual trail ride.

I know that I speak for all of us when I say that the trip was very enjoyable, and we certainly all had a wonderful time and made many friends.

For myself, those happy days spent riding through the flower-carpeted alpine meadows, and quiet spruce forests, amid the calm peace of the mountains, and the happy evenings around the campfire in the company of such fine, friendly people, are among the happiest moments of my lifetime.

It is a trip I will always remember.

Again thanking you, and wishing the Trail Riders every success for the future, and many more such happy rides in the happier days to come.

I remain,

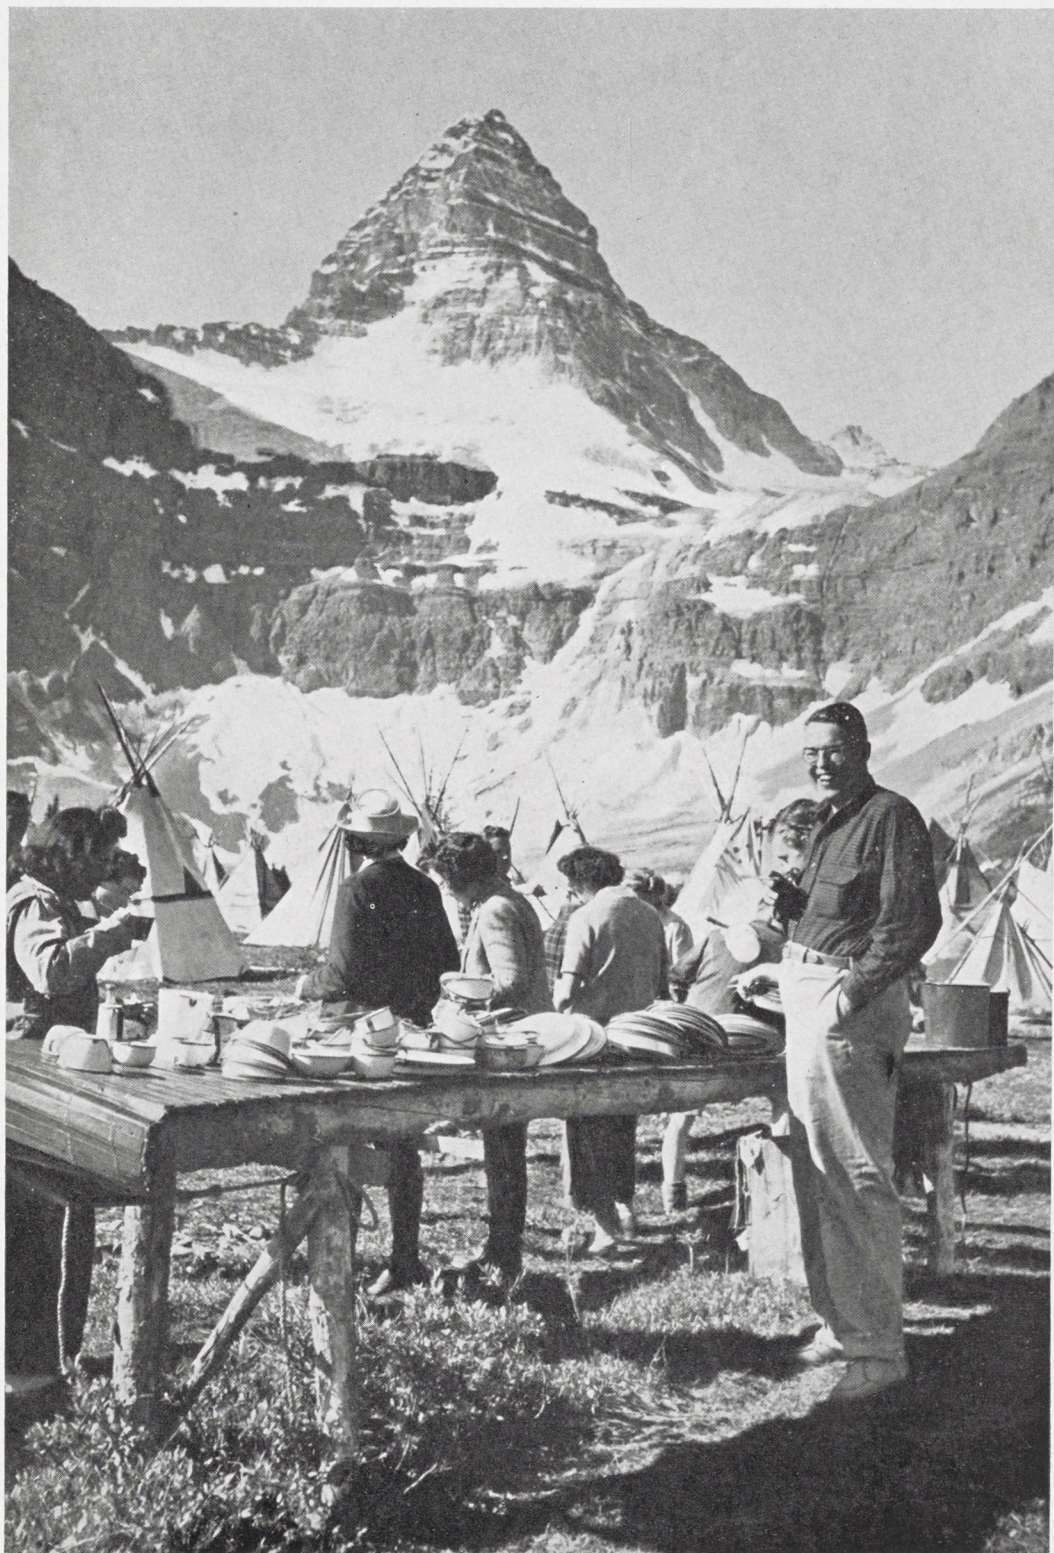

Yours sincerely,

Indian Name for Travers Coleman

*Former Trail Ride President Honored by Stoney Tribe

"E-Monta-Lio" was the Indian name conferred on Travers Coleman of Winnipeg, president of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies in 1942, at the pow-wow on the sports ground of the Banff Springs Hotel following the 1943 ride, by Indians of the Stoney tribe whose representatives have been accompanying the riders on recent sorties into the high hills.

Chief Johnny Bearspaw, with his pal Tom Labelle acting as interlocutor, made the presentation in the Sundance teepee where the pow-wow was being held, just after Mr. Coleman had completed his traditional one-man wrestling act in which, as a mythical Russian wrestler, name of Boris Toruspanzoff, he is downed in mortal combat by the equally mythical "Bulgarian Billy-Goat", Ivan Awfulitch.

This highly acrobatic performance, an annual pow-wow feature, long has reigned a favorite among the Indians with the result that the burly Winnipegger has gained a wholly unjustified reputation among the Red Men as a man of great strength and physical prowess.

"We selected the name of the strongest animal in the mountains", said Tom Labelle, while Chief Johnny Bearspaw grinned approval, "and we name you E-Monta-Lio, which means Mountain Lion".

This announcement, coming as much of a surprise to "Boris Toruspanzoff" as it did to the big pow-wow audience composed of Trail Riders, their Banff friends and visitors, was greeted with a storm of applause. From then on it was no longer Boris Toruspanzoff or Travers Coleman, but simply Mountain Lion. Many and wonderful were the attempts to pronounce the name in the Indian style of Tom Labelle.

POW-WOW WOWS AUDIENCE

It took more than a downpour to dampen the enthusiasm of trail riders and townspeople alike who attended the annual pow-wow at the conclusion of the ride at Banff on the night of Tuesday, August 3.

Breezy entertainment coupled with community singing and other outstanding features kept the audience in carnival mood as rain-drops drummed a steady tattoo on the big Sundance teepee.

For sheer hilarity Trav Coleman's one-man wrestling act highlighted the entertainment card as the veteran Boris Toruspanzoff again came to grips with his ancient enemy, Ivan Awfulitch.

Georgia Engelhard of New York told what it felt like to climb Mount Assiniboine, a feat she accomplished several years ago. Her only reward, she said, were a few champagne bottles — all empty — that greeted her on the mountain's lofty summit!

Memories of the campfire songs were revived as trail riders again thumbed the pages of their Song Sheets and told Banffites in musical language what they had accomplished on the trail ride. Accompaniment was provided by Henry Elsasser and Graham Nichols.

Jean Stewart, vivacious M.C. of the sing-songs, conducted the musical numbers and made the audience give everything it had.

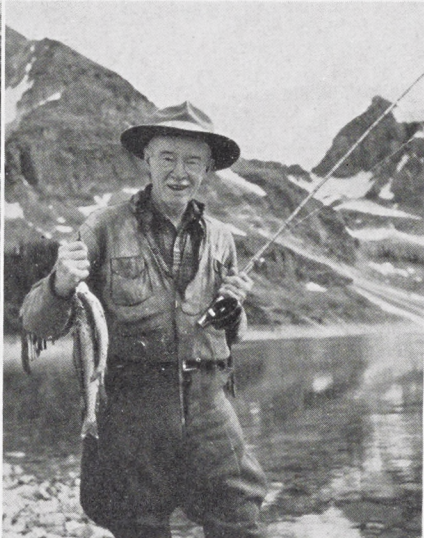

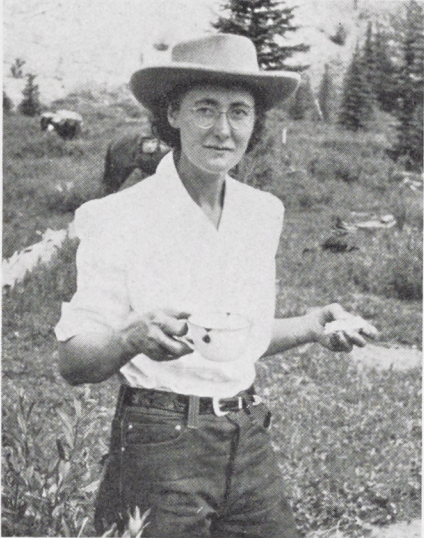

Announcement of the new slate of officers was made at the conclusion of the programme by the secretary-treasurer. Presidential honors went to Dr. A. T. Gillespie of Fort William, while Sidney Hollander of Baltimore and Kay Spalding of Calgary were appointed vice-presidents.

Elected to the council were Dr. D. A. Clark, New Westminster, B.C.; Georgia Engelhard, New York; Mrs. Kate Keith, Toronto; Olive Hanley, Montreal; P. D. Macarow, Montreal; Mrs. P. M. Paton, Calgary; Mrs. Helga Jansa, Pasadena, Cal.; Mrs. Mary Sieburth, Vancouver; Ralph J. Mather, Minneapolis, Minn.

PASSING THE BUCK

By Graham Nichols

And all the horses did pass "Buck", the author's slow but sure-footed Buckskin pony — a worthy successor to "Tiger", but built for comfort, not speed.

Best of friends

"Eighty-four saddle ponies on the ride", I muttered prodding Buck's ribs with a determined but futile heel, "and I had to be saddled with this one." For it was really I who was saddled — the horse was out to enjoy itself, and at the expense of the rider. "Come on, get moving", I said as the last rider disappeared around a bend on the trail. And as usual nothing happened.

But let's get back to the beginning — back to that sunny morning of July 30th when the bus discharged its colorful and enthusiastic cargo at Canmore where the ride got under way. We all remember the scene — riders of all shapes and sizes milling about the enclosure; tenderfoot riders nervously stroking their horses in an effort to gain their goodwill, seasoned trail riders adjusting their cinches or stirrups, or already perched atop their mounts.

Claude Leads the Way

Not so conspicuous, perhaps, was the little band of "left-overs" tagging along single-file behind Claude Brewster, its members consisting of the rapidly dwindling number of riders who still lacked a horse, and who feared that the supply might run out before their needs were accommodated. A few openly expressed their fears that pack horses might be drafted to serve their needs. The fact that some of the pack ponies had already staged an impressive demonstration to prove that horses too could cavort about on two legs did not make the situation any easier for these would-be equestrians, most of whom were greenhorns.

The "left-over" ranks continued to dwindle, however, as extra saddle horses were produced from behind this tree or that, and it was not long before Claude's entourage had dwindled to three. The three of us (of course I had to be one of them), bound together by a common cause, were far from being Cossacks. What we didn't know about riding would have filled volumes. From the comments of the other two and their nervous attempts at laughter, I gathered they were no more sure of themselves than I was... and I had at least one trail ride to my credit. "Let me see", mused Claude scrutinizing his note-book, "that leaves just three of you to find horses for". He darted a swift glance in the direction of the pack ponies. I gulped.

Reddish Glow is Horse

I was doing my best to keep Claude in a happy mood. "How's Tiger?" I asked politely, referring to my diminutive mount of last year's trail ride, "Is he with us again this year?" "He", said Claude derisively, "He is at present in the process of having a colt." I changed the subject quickly recalling how in last year's Bulletin articles I had always referred to "Tiger" with the masculine Trail riding colleagues of Jean Stewart, our comely "M.C." of the sing-songs and pow-wow, will be glad to learn that Jeanie is on the mend again after sustaining a broken ankle.

The irony of the whole thing lies in the fact that Jeanie weathered the rigors of the Trail Ride and Trail Hike like a veteran, coming to grief on — of all places — a Banff dance floor.

Jeanie, however, takes it philosophically. "High-heeled slippers", she says, "just don't seem safe after the old reliable riding boots". Meantime she is back at school and getting to be quite an expert on crutches.

pronoun. I still marvelled at Claude's patience as the search continued.

Suddenly there appeared a reddish-yellow glow through the trees, not quite as red as Janet Campbell's wide-brimmed hat, but quite sufficient to arrest the eye. Claude scribbled something in his notebook and shut it with a sigh of relief. "There's your horse," he said pointing to the glow in the trees, "His name's Buck." "His name?" I queried. "His name", affirmed Claude. There would be no more such errors in the Trail Ride Bulletin.

The 20th annual Trail Ride was under way. Unlike last year when we lunched under the frowning gaze of Castle Mountain prior to pushing off, we left Canmore with the taste of the morning's grapefruit still fresh on our lips. "We're having lunch at Whiteman's Pass", I heard someone remark, as the big safari filed out of the corral and onto the highway. Ahead of the procession rode President Marshall Diverty, who like pretty daughter, Jane, wears the 500-miles-and-more button. At the other end, but still in the procession, rode the author — and fighting hard to hold that inglorious position.

Buck versus Tiger

It was then that I had time to collect my thoughts and take an interest in the proceedings. I began by comparing Buck, my last minute horse assignment, to Tiger of last year's fame. Both were somewhat similar in color and markings, but for size Buck was a winner by a considerable margin. Both were of a tawny yellowish hue. Tiger derived his name — pardon me, her name — from a thin dark brown stripe that followed the jagged course of her backbone. Buck had one too, only it went farther, running from his shaggy mane to the tip of his long tail. When he swished his tail at a horsefly the tail-stripe momentarily lost its symmetry, but reappeared again as the tail resumed its normal position.

What Buck boasted in stature, however, he certainly lacked in speed. Either that or he was giving me a silent horse laugh under his breath. Unlike last year when it was all I could do to hold my horse back, my main problem this year was to keep my horse on the move at all. By the time we left the corral, threaded our way through Canmore's "metropolitan area", and fell in line on the woody trail to Whiteman's Pass, my legs were hanging limply in the stirrups, worn out completely from nudging Buck's unresponsive framework in an effort to keep up with the riders.

Lunch at Whiteman's Pass restored our energies considerably, and I hoped that Buck had derived equal benefit from the long lush grass that waved in profusion around our lunch-site. My hopes were shattered, however, long before the white bleached deer antlers that graced the door of the warden's cabin were lost to view. The horse was adamant; he was determined to watch the trail ride from the back seat. I resigned myself to my fate. After all, I was lucky to be in the ride at all, I suppose — with a horse like Buck. I came to the conclusion that the horse had but two speeds, slow and slower.

Once, in a moment of desperation, I had given Buck a brisk swish where I figured it would do the most good, using a dilapidated spruce bough for a weapon. Instead of lunging ahead, however, he slowed to a near stop, turned his head around and gave me such a pained expression that I abandoned the cudgel tactics and decided to apply psychological tactics in their place. "You have a very slow horse, haven't you," said a kindly voice behind me. "Pass friend", I said, and she did.

When the cavalcade moved into Spray Lakes that evening both Buck and I were ready to call it a day. The cowboys were waiting impatiently at the corral for the 84th horse, as I walked up to the corral, leading Buck by the lines, and making better time that I had made during the entire day.

Has Good Points

But it was negotiating that tough piece of trail on the second day when Buck really showed his stuff. Great logs that loomed up along a woody lakeshore tempted most horses to detour through the shallow water... but not Buck. He had his directions fixed in his mind, and no log could alter his decision. He surmounted them neatly.

Once when we approached a log of particularly large dimensions, Buck stopped thoughtfully and took note of the situation. I could see he was making some kind of decision. And then it happened, a strange piece of equine manoeuvring indeed. He seemed to rear slowly and flop forward, establishing his front feet firmly across the log. Then he paused for a moment, while I wondered what would happen next. I did not have long to wait. Without warning the hind legs performed an independent gallop — a strange sensation for the rider — while the rest of the horse followed in slow flowing motion. He looked back at me as though for a well earned commendation.

And so it went on. No hazard proved too tough for my buckskin as we followed the long trail to Mount Assiniboine... and layover camp. But he never succeeded in improving his position as "also ran" of the ride. Once, however, we moved into second last position, but we enjoyed this advanced rank only for a few brief moments. Then the rider behind us came galloping by carrying a camera. It was only 'Pal' Palenske who had retired to the background to aim his camera at a choice piece of scenery.

One-Man Trail Ride

Any hopes that the layover at Mount Assiniboine might alter Buck's decision to keep at a respectable distance from the balance of the cavalcade were shattered soon after we hit the trail for Larix Lake. It was nice, of course, to be able to relax and gape open-mouthed at that majestic wall at the left with the feathery waterfall cascading its foaming contents down the mountain's face — and to do this with the assurance that I was not holding up the rider behind me.

And during the last phase of the ride when the trail took us high over Simpson Summit, across flower-carpeted meadows above the Rocky Mountain timberline, my mild-eyed cayuse continued to function with exasperating resignation. Up in those great open spaces it made the situation all the more embarrassing. The trail ride seemed to be a thing moving apart, and I was running a one-man trail ride of my own. It was only when the riders stopped to rest their horses that I had a chance to catch up with my companions. When I arrived they were already back on their horses and ready to shove off!

Then came the humiliating climax. We all remember that stop at Healy Creek, rehearsing our play, storm clouds gathering, and how we rode off in the rain. But the author did not ride off — simply because his horse got the idea first. So there I was horseless, coatless and seemingly luckless as the rainfall steadily gained momentum. Being a trail hiker of one season's standing, I started plodding off in the direction of Banff, on foot, while Indian guides galloped off in various directions in an attempt to locate my missing horse.

Buck Goes to Town

Scarcely had I completed my first mile, however, when I heard the sound of thundering hooves and three horses bore down on me, including two guides on their fast Indian chargers. And keeping pace with them was — no, it couldn't be, but it was — that slow plodding hay-burner, that had apparently been saving up its energy during the past five days for just such an occasion.

I was on Buck's back in an instant, and he immediately became his old slow self again.

The two Indian guides, eager to catch up with the trail riders, now several miles ahead, had already passed out of sight. Buck and I were plodding alone through the storm on a road that would have invited last year's Tiger to emulate "Seabiscuit." At the rate Buck and I were moving, however, we would, with luck, be in Banff in time to hear "Auld Lang Syne" at the end of the pow-wow.

Thundering hooves again sounded in the background and suddenly the rider — another of the guides who had been sent in search of my errant mount — drew alongside the animal. "If you want him to travel," said the guide, "hold his lines like this. He's one of the best little ponies on the trail." I held the lines "like this" and things began to happen. With a surprising burst of speed Buck shot forward in the direction of Banff.

Before I had recovered my surprise we were bearing down on the other trail riders, and a few moments later I was frantically trying to keep Buck from cutting in ahead of the President. Then I remembered and relaxed the lines. Buck relaxed with them.

So it was just a simple matter of adjusting the lines. And to think that all the time I was riding one of the speediest, most responsive, and best mannered animals on the trail ride. "Why didn't someone tell me these things", I asked myself as Brewster's Stables loomed ahead through the diminishing rain.

Our new president

DR. A. T. GILLESPIE HEADS TRAIL RIDERS

The appointment of Dr. A. T. Gillespie of Fort William, Ont. to the presidency of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies for 1943-44 has been received with unanimous approval by those who participated in this year's trail ride and those of previous years.

The new president, who succeeds Marshall H. Diverty of Woodbury, N.J. to the "supreme command" for the forthcoming season, is a trail rider of several years' standing — or perhaps we should say riding — his accumulated mileage on Rocky Mountain trails coming close to the 500-mile mark.

An enthusiastic and popular rider, both on the trail and in camp, Dr. Gillespie was one of the five vice-presidents who helped guide the destinies of this summer's ride, which many have voted as one of the best yet.

Mrs. Gillespie shares her husband's enthusiasm and love of the mountain trails, and wears the Society's button for 250 miles and more with the Trail Riders.

WIN THAT TROPHY!

There is nothing unpatriotic about hoarding silver — not when it comes in the form of the Townsend Trophy, the handsome silver cup awarded to the Trail Rider who in the judges' opinion has snapped the best photograph of that year's trail ride.

The procedure is simple. The candidate simply selects what he or she considers the likeliest prospects, and forwards them to the Secretary-Treasurer, Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, Room 318, Windsor station, Montreal, P.Q., Canada.

The entries must be accompanied by the candidate's name contained in a sealed envelope, on the outside of which is the sender's nom-de-plume for identification. This prevents any risk of discrimination on the part of the judges, none of whom is a Trail Rider, and all of whom are competent critics.

Photographs should be printed on glossy paper, not larger than 8 by 10 inches, and must be submitted not later than February 1st, 1944. The winner, in addition to having his name inscribed on the big silver trophy, receives a smaller silver replica of the cup suitably inscribed.

A good neighbor

Retiring presidents should be retiring. This is difficult for some ex-presidents whether it refers to modesty or to the need for slumber. As to the former I was and still am able to ride at the head of a cavalcade of 84 riders with no evidence of a virgin's blush. As to the latter, my best friends are my severest critics.

The honor of being president of such an organization leaves one with feelings of profound humility. I am proud to be an American and proud to have lived under the stars with friends living thousands of miles apart but with the same ideals; to have lived with men and women who believe in the freedom of speech and of religion, in the freedom from want and from fear; to have worked and played for even a short time with friends who constantly exemplify the admonition of the great Teacher, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." It is a supreme joy to ride the trails of God's woodlands and mountains with friends who love the wonders of this incomparable paradise on earth. To have been the leader of our Trail Riders is an honor accepted with humility and discharged with pride.

Oh yes, a few impressions. This year's ride highlights the amazing ability of Claude and Ruth Brewster to surpass themselves under most difficult conditions, the perfection of trails through unsurpassed scenery and the enthusiasm of the Riders for patriotic and war time melodies including the 24 hour airing of such melodies as "Waltzing Matilda". We were all gratified to again find Johnny Bearspaw in Claude's outfit. The presence of Georgia Engelhard clearly inspired the horses to supreme efforts in climbing the steeper passes.

This year Trav Coleman reached new heights in entertainment of the camp fire and teepee variety. Calgary came into its own, at last. Olive Hanley continued her efficiency and made the dudes enjoy it. As Charlie said, it was nice knowing Jean Stewart at the camp fire. Graham's horse, like all gophers, had taken on weight. Dr. Gow continued his annual swan song and seemed to be busy with one thing or another even though there was little need for his professional services. Dr. Gillespie proclaimed surprise that we had unanimously selected him as our new president although even the Indians knew his qualifications. The beloved and astounding Dr. Gibbon continued to astound.

We were thrilled by Whiteman's Pass, Assiniboine, Simpson Summit and Larix Lake. We treasure such friends as comprise the riders of these majestic trails. We are proud of the mutual admiration and respect of the great and peace loving neighbors of this continent. We grasped the relaxation that fits us to carry on in our task to forever establish life, liberty and happiness throughout this peace loving world.

Your retiring president has been inspired by God's gifts of nature and by the love of his neighbors. He now joins the ranks of the riders as a wiser and, I hope, a better neighbor and world citizen.

This year we were honored by our six guests from the air forces of England, Australia and New Zealand. These guests, and others on furlough from the armed forces, were a constant reminder of the unity of purpose and ideals of the democracies of the whole wide world. We have no fear for the future, with such boys to bear the burden.

ALISDAIR FRASER OVERSEAS

It's a far cry from the peaceful vales of the Canadian Rockies to the blazing battle-grounds of Sicily and Italy, but Trail Rider Alisdair Fraser, now a Lieutenant with the Canadian Army Film and Photos Section overseas, has survived the transition — and with flying colors.

His weapon, not a gun but a movie camera, Lieut. Fraser has kept pace with the advancing Canadian Forces throughout the Sicilian campaign and is now operating with the Canadian Forces in Italy, as head of the Motion Picture Section.

A highly popular member of the 1930 and 1939 Trail Rides, Lt. Fraser wears the Society's button for 100 miles and more. He married in 1939 and gave his bride something different in the way of a honeymoon... he took her on the Trail Ride.

Trail Ride Echoes

by Tillie Knight

Hi-Ho Silver! Greetings from the snow-capped peaks of the Canadian Rockies.

A month or two has passed and all who went on the 1943 Ride are still raving or writing about the marvellous time they had.

An exchange of snaps has been going the rounds, and some taken by F/Lt. Bert Guernier, RAF, formerly of the Channel Islands, are really a pride and joy to all who have been lucky enough to see them.

The lads from "down under", Gus (LAC A. F. Linder, RNZAF), Roy, (LAC R. J. D. Mallinson, RAAF), Tony (LAC M. A. Nolan, RNZAF) and our RAF lads were all thrilled with the Ride. Banff is now their second home. At present No. 2 Wireless is their duty lodge, but some of them have been lucky enough to come up on 48's and re-visit the friends they made at Trail Ride time. When the war is over, we'll be looking for these lads on the trails again.

Hats off to a very ambitious Easterner — Miss Frances Royer, who took in both the Trail Ride and The Sky Line hike, then tried to find ways and means of bicycling to Jasper! However, she was content to walk into Temple and Skoki and see the country that is fast becoming as famous in winter as in summer. I'm not certain just how many miles she covered, but I'll bet all the mount-ains in that district echo 'Allouette'.

Janet Campbell, the "Spokane Flash", went back with such wonderful tales of the ride, that already she has four or five of her gal friends lining up their blue jeans and duffles for next year. Spokaners have always had a place in their heart for the Canadian Rockies and it will be recalled that the Banff Carnival Queen of 1941 was Catherine Betts of Spokane, who with her party made many friends here. And wasn't it at Mount Assiniboine a few years ago that another Spokane gal lost her heart?

Georgia Engelhard of New York, who is the most enthusiastic woman mountaineer I have ever met, is still climbing the peaks in the Rockies. Lake Louise and Lake O'Hara districts have been doing their best to calm some of her ambition. But Georgia is still in there climbing!

Our condolences go to our versatile song leader, Jean Stewart, who had the misfortune to break a bone in her ankle before leaving Banff — purely accidental. Last reports, she was progressing and able to hold her own. Jean also spent a fortnight in the Lake Louise district, around Temple and Skoki and here's hoping her leg will be completely recovered by the time Spring skiing rolls around in the mountains.

Another one of our hardest Trail Ride workers has had bad luck. Young Buddy Brewster, dude wrangler and night wrangler, had the misfortune of breaking his arm at the ranch. He says it will be fine in another month or so. Here's hoping so anyway, as we all appreciate the grand work done by this young cowboy.
